BOSTON EMERGENCY MEDICAL SERVICES PROGRAM
BOSTON, MA

Boston EMS is accepting applications for its EMS fellowship. BEMS is one of the nation’s oldest providers of pre-hospital care, tracing its beginnings back more than 100 years. BEMS provides pre-hospital emergency care for more than 600,000 night time and 1.2 million daytime residents and visitors of Boston. BEMS is also responsible for staffing and maintenance of the medical dispatch for the City of Boston 911 call center. BEMS has a close relationship with the Del Valle Institute for Emergency Preparedness. BEMS physicians play a vital role in the ongoing design, operation, evaluation and revision of the EMS system from initial patient access to definitive patient care. The BEMS Fellowship provides physicians with the necessary experience in operations, training, research and administration to contribute to EMS systems in a variety of settings.

The EMS fellowship is two years in length and includes a master’s in public health at Boston University School of Public Health. The fellow also has a part-time clinical appointment at Boston Medical Center and Boston University School of Medicine. Applicants for the BEMS Fellowship should preferably be graduates of a 1-4 or a 2-3-4 emergency medicine residency program as they will be responsible for clinical teaching or residents in the Boston Medical Center 2-3-4 program. Graduates from a 1-3 year emergency medicine residency will also be considered, and will have clinical responsibilities at the BMC affiliate, Quincy Medical Center, for their first year.

Boston is a vibrant, multi-cultural city with many diverse activities available eg. museums, concerts and sporting events. There is ready access to many other New England sites; mountains for skiing and hiking, as well as great beaches that are within a few hours drive.

For further information, please see our link on www.bostonems.com or contact Ms. Donna L. Shepard, Executive Assistant to Fellowship Director, Dr. Lori Harrington at RTQI, Boston EMS, 767 Albany Street, Boston, MA 02118 or Shepard@bostonems.org.
